Chairman Waxman released a report that found significant lapses in the FDA's current inspection regime for packaged fresh spinach, which is the agency's primary means of ensuring the safety of such products.

Documents and Links

- Report: FDA and Fresh Spinach Safety (Updated May 12, 2008)