Chairman Waxman releases a new GAO report, which examines how spending at CDC changed between 2003 and 2006, following the 2005 administrative restructuring of the agency. Among the report's findings is the fact that spending at the division level, where most funds go to pay for public health projects, declined faster than at the leadership and management levels.

Documents and Links

- GAO Report:: Changes in CDC Obligations and Activities