Subcommittee on Government Operations
Committee on Oversight and Reform

U.S House of Representatives - Field Hearing
Chicago – October 15, 2021
Testimony

Good morning, Chairman Connolly and Ranking Member Jody Hice, and to all the other members of the Subcommittee on Government Operations. I thank you for the opportunity to be here today on behalf of the 4,500 members of the National Association of Letter Carriers local Branch #11 located in Chicago. We represent the City Letter Carriers of the Chicago Post Office, which delivers to the 606 through 608 3-digit zip code areas located in Chicago and eight adjacent suburbs. We also represent city letter carriers in several other suburban Post Offices including Harvey, Maywood/Westchester, Lombard, Evanston, Winnetka and Glenview.

Like other craft employees of the Chicago Post Office: mail handlers, clerks, and custodians, ours is a very proud, hardworking and dedicated work force. We believe in the mission of which we were sworn and that is to the move and deliver the mail of the United States Postal Service. Unfortunately, the reason we are here today is to discuss the crises that has befallen the Chicago Post Office. A crisis that was not borne of the recent pandemic or the questionable polices of the current Postmaster General, but rather was years in the making and only exacerbated by Covid 19.

In order to get a clearer picture of the current state of the Chicago Post Office, I will frame my testimony with a passage from Title 39 of the U.S. Code-Postal Policy:

“(a) The United States Postal Service shall be operated as a basic and fundamental service provided to the people by the Government of the United States, authorized by the Constitution, created by Act of Congress, and supported by the people..." It goes on to say: "It shall provide prompt, reliable, and efficient services to patrons in all areas and shall render postal services to all communities. The costs of establishing and maintaining the Postal Service shall not be apportioned to impair the overall value of such service to the people."

(b) The Postal Service shall provide a maximum degree of effective and regular postal services to rural areas, communities, and small towns where post offices are not self-sustaining."

The Chicago Post Office today resembles nothing of the aforementioned Postal Policy, yet it is consistent with the report by the Office of Inspector General dated May 13, 2019, on the Graceland Annex, a Northside delivery unit in the Chicago Post Office. The audit was done at the request of Congressman Mike Quigley. This report identified late-arriving and unsorted mail; falsified scans to "stop the clock" on packages; the under reporting of delayed mail; the mismanagement or "insufficient supervision" of employees' work hours; all of which can be attributed to the staffing issues noted in this report. Like other offices in Chicago, this Postal unit lacks the number of employees, clerks and carriers, needed to provide "prompt, reliable and efficient services" to postal patrons. Of course, this was pre-pandemic.

Fast forward to February 1 of this year and the OIG conducts another audit, at the request of Congressman Bobby Rush. This time it was four units on the Southside of Chicago: Auburn Pk, James Worsham, Henry McGee and the Ashburn stations. The results are eerily similar: delayed mail, improper scanning, inaccurate reporting of mail conditions, and below par employee availability directly related to staffing. These stations are not anomalies, but rather the status quo of the Chicago Post Office.

As recent as August of this year, an average of 100-200 full and/or partial routes were not getting delivered in Chicago daily. Each route accounts for up to 1,000 delivery points. These reports of delayed mail are based on the firsthand accounts of carriers on the work room floor, because as noted by the OIG, postal management data is consistently unreliable. They no longer manage operations to provide the “maximum degree of effective and regular mail service,” they are managing to provide misleading reports to appease upper Postal management.

These same reports are then given to Congressional Offices seeking answers to constant complaints by your constituents. We know their complaints because we hear it from them as well. Complaints of late or no mail delivery for days or weeks. Packages scanned attempted delivery when there was no attempt. We know their complaints because we are postal customers too.

The under staffing and mismanagement of the Chicago Post Office have taken a toll on our dedicated work force and letter carriers are tired. We are tired and we are embarrassed! We are tired from working multiple assignments late into the night, because despite the OIG reports local management has failed to properly staff the operations for which it has been entrusted. We are tired of monitoring our check stubs due to the rampant timecard fraud by Chicago Postal supervisors. Fraud perpetrated to distort the usage of work hours.

We are tired of the disrespect on the work room floor that is shown to postal workers who have worked this past year through a deadly pandemic, yet there is a total disregard for our personal safety. Letter Carriers and Clerks are the face of this organization, and we are embarrassed by what the Postal Service has become. Our members come to work every day in a uniform that represents a tainted product because the Chicago Post Office is in utter disarray. Although recent reports provided to Congressional Offices by this union indicate improvement in some delivery areas, we are of the belief that this is not sustainable.

From the flawed onboarding process, training and retention of new hires; to the erratic and unpredictable daily operations; the Chicago Post Office is dysfunctional at best. Although the OIG reports provided detailed recommendations to improve service, nothing changed because there is no real accountability. We hope that this hearing today will move us towards that accountability and improve the service to our customers. Thank you, and I am prepared to answer any questions that you have for me.
