Mr. Mark Williams
Commissioner
Georgia Department of Natural Resources
2 Martin Luther King, Jr. Drive SE
Suite 1252 – East Tower
Atlanta, GA 30334

Dear Mr. Williams:

We write regarding “Operation Something Bruin,” a law enforcement action conducted from 2009 through 2013 in western North Carolina and Georgia. The operation focused on catching poachers and preventing other illegal wildlife crimes.¹ The Georgia Department of Natural Resources (Georgia DNR), North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission (NC Wildlife Commission), U.S. Forest Service, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and the National Park Service (collectively, the Agencies) collaboratively deployed undercover officers posing as hunters to catch and charge poachers with wildlife violations.

Recent media reports suggest that the Agencies used questionable tactics to charge hunters with violations of anti-poaching laws throughout the operation.² On December 8, 2014, for example, the North Carolina General Assembly held a public hearing where people spoke out against the operation.³ The concerns raised at the hearing included the Agencies’ tactics to entrap hunters, excessive use of force, invasion of privacy, and confiscation of property unrelated to the charges pursued by the operation.⁴

The Georgia DNR and NC Wildlife Commission touted the operation as a great success citing that “80 wildlife violators” were originally charged in the four-year operation. Freedom of Information Act requests, however, show that only 55 people were actually charged.⁵ There are also questions about the circumstances in which some of these 55 individuals were charged. One such case involves father and son, Walt and Cale Stancil.

The bear involved in the Stancils' case was killed in Georgia, and the Georgia prosecuting attorney believes the officer violated that state's law, explaining "[t]here's no question it violated Georgia criminal laws when [the officer] killed a bear in Georgia."⁶ During a separate hunter's trial for charges arising out of Operation Something Bruin, the same officer admitted in court to violating 39 wildlife laws.⁷ The officer nevertheless received an award for his work related to Operation Something Bruin in 2013.⁸

In order to assist the Committee in understanding the circumstances surrounding Operation Something Bruin, please provide the following documents:

1. All documents and communications referring or relating to Operation Something Bruin from January 20, 2009, to the present.
2. All documents and communications referring or relating to any charges or convictions related to Operation Something Bruin.
3. All documents and communications referring or relating to the cost of Operation Something Bruin, itemized by expenditure category.
4. All documents and communications referring or relating to any grant or other financial assistance provided by any federal agency to the Georgia Department of Natural Resources for participating in Operation Something Bruin.
5. All documents and communications referring or relating to any interagency law enforcement agreement concerning Operation Something Bruin.

Please provide the requested information as soon as possible, but no later than 5:00 p.m. on June 3, 2015. When producing documents to the Committee, please deliver production sets to the Majority staff in room 2157 of the Rayburn House Office Building and the Minority staff in room 2471 of the Rayburn House Office Building. The Committee prefers, if possible, to receive all documents in electronic format.

11. If compliance with the request cannot be made in full by the specified return date, compliance shall be made to the extent possible by that date. An explanation of why full compliance is not possible shall be provided along with any partial production.

19. Upon completion of the document production, you should submit a written certification, signed by you or your counsel, stating that: (1) a diligent search has been completed of all documents in your possession, custody, or control which reasonably could contain responsive documents; and (2) all documents located during the search that are responsive have been produced to the Committee.
