The Honorable Ashton Carter
Secretary
U.S. Department of Defense
1000 Defense Pentagon
Washington, D.C. 20301-1000

Dear Mr. Secretary:

Recent media reports indicate that the security clearances of the Director of Naval Intelligence, Vice Admiral Ted Branch, and one of his deputies, the Corporate Director for Information Dominance, Rear Admiral Bruce Loveless, have been suspended for more than two years during an investigation that remains ongoing.¹ Because both senior officers maintain roles in which access to classified information would appear to be essential to the proper execution of their duties, we have questions about how they are conducting their duties without negatively affecting the Navy's intelligence and information dominance missions.

Rear Admiral Dawn Cutler, the Navy's Chief of Information, has stated that VADM Branch and RADM Loveless "still perform managerial duties while their civilian and military deputies handle the classified aspects of their jobs."² According to press reports, however, "[VADM] Branch can't meet with other senior U.S. intelligence leaders to discuss sensitive operations, or hear updates from his staff about secret missions or projects."³ One former adviser to senior Navy officials questioned whether VADM Branch and RADM Loveless could "assign the right people to classified projects to which they have no access[,] . . . develop or monitor budget data for classified projects," or even "write or review fitness reports for subordinates who are working on classified projects."⁴

So the Committee can better understand whether senior Navy leadership are able to execute their duties in intelligence roles with suspended security clearances, please provide written responses to the following questions and requests for information as soon as possible, but no later than 5:00 p.m. on February 15, 2016:

1. Documents sufficient to show the current status of the security clearances for VADM Branch and RADM Loveless and the status of any related investigation that may result in their suspensions being lifted or revoked.

2. Documents referring or relating to the duties of the Director of Naval Intelligence and of the Corporate Director for Information Dominance.
3. Documents and communications referring or relating to how VADM Branch and RADM Loveless are able to execute those duties without the use of a security clearance.
4. Documents sufficient to show the security clearance level required for the Director of Naval Intelligence and Corporate Director of Information Dominance.
5. Documents and communications from the Department of Justice relating to the security clearances of VADM Branch and RADM Loveless being suspended.
6. Documents sufficient to show when VADM Branch and RADM Loveless had their security clearances suspended.

Please also provide a briefing for Committee staff on these issues no later than February 22, 2016.

19. Upon completion of the document production, you should submit a written certification, signed by you or your counsel, stating that: (1) a diligent search has been completed of all documents in your possession, custody, or control which reasonably could contain responsive documents; and (2) all documents located during the search that are responsive have been produced to the Committee.
