The Honorable Sally Jewell
Secretary
U.S. Department of the Interior
1849 C Street N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20240

Dear Madam Secretary:

The Open Government Act of 2007 established the Office of Government Information Services (OGIS) within the National Archives and Records Administration to “ensure the timely and fair resolution of American’s [Freedom of Information Act] requests.”¹ OGIS was designed to act as an independent ombudsman that builds a bridge between federal agencies and FOIA requesters. As an ombudsman, “OGIS provides its services in a neutral fashion, advocating not for the requester or for the agency, but for the FOIA process to work as intended.”²

On May 12, 2016, former OGIS Director James Holzer sent a letter to the Department that requested information related to six pending appeals of FOIA requests.³ Specifically, the letter stated that OGIS has contacted the Department “seeking information about the status—including a tracking number—for these appeals,” but they have received “no substantive response to these inquiries.”⁴ It is our understanding that OGIS and the Department have since worked out an arrangement to ensure OGIS receives the information it requested.

OGIS has expressed to the Committee remaining concerns regarding the Department’s failure to provide expected completion dates for appeals. FOIA requires agencies to provide requesters with, “an estimated date on which the agency will complete action on the request.” According to OGIS, most agencies interpret this requirement to require agencies to provide estimated dates of completion for both initial responses and appeals. The intent of this provision is for agencies to keep requesters informed. A failure to provide estimated dates of completion for appeals to requesters or to OGIS could lead to unnecessary frustration for requesters and litigation.

The Committee has jurisdiction over FOIA, and as such, is charged with conducting oversight of the government's FOIA operations. To help the Committee understand the problems that are preventing the Department from responding to OGIS' repeated requests, provide the following documents and information as soon as possible, but not later than June 27, 2016:

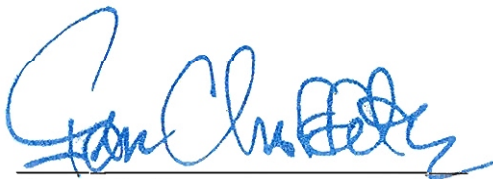

1. A description of the agreement reached between the Department and OGIS in response the May 12, 2016, letter from OGIS;
2. All documents and communications referring or relating to responding to OGIS's requests for information about the six pending appeals referenced in the May 12, 2016, letter;
3. A description of any policy by the Department on providing estimated dates of completion for initial responses to requests and subsequent appeals; and
4. All guidance and policies provided to the Department's FOIA officers explaining how they are expected to interact with OGIS.

Please also provide a briefing to Committee staff on this matter no later than June 20, 2016.

The Committee on Oversight and Government Reform is the principal oversight committee of the U.S. House of Representatives and may at "any time" investigate "any matter" as set forth in House Rule X.

19. Upon completion of the document production, you should submit a written certification, signed by you or your counsel, stating that: (1) a diligent search has been completed of all documents in your possession, custody, or control which reasonably could contain responsive documents; and (2) all documents located during the search that are responsive have been produced to the Committee.
