Mr. Brian Deese
Director
National Economic Council
1600 Pennsylvania Ave. N.W.
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Director Deese:

We write to you again to request information about the Biden Administration's plans to address the ongoing economic crisis. The exponential rise in inflation since President Biden took office shows the dramatic consequences of massive deficit spending and the fallout from funding an extreme left-wing agenda. We wrote to you last summer and to President Biden last month and received no response. It is unacceptable for this Administration to skirt oversight while failing to recognize and adequately respond to the worst economic crisis in decades.

On September 13, 2022, the stock market had its worst day since June 2020, which was near the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic.<sup>1</sup> As President Biden celebrated the passage of his spending bill, the ironically-named "Inflation Reduction Act," with musician James Taylor, the inflation numbers for August were released.<sup>2</sup> After months of growing inflation, the trend continued to reveal higher than expected numbers.<sup>3</sup> And yet, the Biden Administration has prioritized spending taxpayer dollars recklessly pushing out more money into an inflationary economy. The Biden Administration has spent nearly $4 trillion on its leftist policies—not including the illegal student loan bailout which could cost taxpayers an additional $230 billion.<sup>4</sup>

For the past 17 months, the American people have faced rising inflation.<sup>5</sup> In August 2022, consumer prices were up 8.3 percent compared to August of last year and up 0.1 percent from July 2022.<sup>6</sup> The average price of gas is 25.6 percent higher than last year.<sup>7</sup> The price of groceries continues to rise, hitting the lowest income Americans the hardest. Eggs are up nearly 40 percent compared to August 2021, milk is up 17 percent, chicken is up 16.6 percent, and bread is up 16.2 percent.<sup>8</sup> Home electricity bills are up nearly 16 percent, home gas bills are up 33 percent, and rent is up 6.2 percent.<sup>9</sup> Further, real average weekly earnings are down 3.4 percent, meaning the average American has less buying power as prices continue to rise.<sup>10</sup>

This Administration has refused to heed the warnings from economists about the consequences of overspending as the economy recovers from a pandemic. On February 4, 2021, Harvard Professor Larry Summers, top economic advisor to both President Clinton and President Obama, warned that President Biden’s almost $2 trillion “stimulus” plan was three times as large as the output shortfall, and that, “policymakers need to ensure that they have plans in place to address [the] possible, and quite serious, problem” of inflation.<sup>11</sup> On May 18, 2022, he reiterated his concern that policy-makers are “taking very substantial risks on the inflation side.”<sup>12</sup> Then on September 13, 2022, when the new Consumer Price Index (CPI) numbers came out, he warned “[t]oday’s CPI report confirms that the U.S. has a serious inflation problem.”<sup>13</sup> In June 2022, another Harvard Economist and President Obama’s former chair of the Council of Economic Advisers, Jason Furman, warned that the country faces the “biggest risk of stagflation we’ve had in a long time.”<sup>14</sup>

As the American people continue to struggle to afford groceries, energy, and rent, President Biden and his Administration deny there is a problem. On June 5, 2021, Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen said inflation could hit as high as 3 percent but that it was “transitory.”<sup>15</sup> On July 19, 2021, President Biden downplayed the risk of inflation, telling reporters that price hikes “are expected to be temporary.”<sup>16</sup> When the July 2022 inflation numbers were released, President Biden claimed “our economy had zero percent inflation,” even though it was clear that the cost of groceries and rent continue to rise.<sup>17</sup> When the August 2022 numbers were released, President Biden hosted a party to celebrate his additional half-trillion “Inflation Reduction Act,” which, economists agree, will have little to no impact on actual inflation that is crushing everyday Americans.<sup>18</sup>

When the August inflation numbers were released, you said in an interview, “[w]hat is most notable about where we are right now is...the resilience of American consumers and households.”<sup>19</sup> Those are hollow words coming from an administration that has contributed to—not alleviated—the growing inflation. For too long, Americans have been forced to be resilient as Democrats kept schools closed and now, the Biden Administration continues to pump trillions more dollars into an economy suffering under the weight of inflation. They should be hearing solutions from the Biden Administration. To that end, we request you provide a staff level briefing about these solutions to address the economic crisis as soon as possible but no later than September 29, 2022.
